Oklahoma Board of Bar Examiners

The OU College of Law again leads the state in bar passage rates. OU Law graduates achieved a 95 percent pass rate on the July 2017 bar exam for first-time exam takers, eclipsing the statewide first-time average by 8 percent and marking OU's highest first-time bar passage rate in the last seven years.

A total of 89 OU alumni took the exam. The overall passage rate for OU graduates was 93 percent, exceeding the statewide overall pass rate by 12 percent.

"OU Law's perennial achievements on the Oklahoma Bar Exam are a testament to our emphasis on admitting well-prepared and academically-qualified students and their education experience at OU Law," said Dean Joe Harroz. "Our graduates' performance exceeded the statewide average in every category, making clear the amount of hard work they put into bar preparation."

100%

OF 1L CLASS
PLEDGES
PRO BONO SERVICE

Every year at orientation, OU Law asks every student in the incoming 1L class to sign a voluntary pro bono and public service pledge. Students can choose to pledge either 50 hours or 100 hours of pro bono and public service over the course of their law school career.

In the current 1L class (Class of 2020), a record 100 percent of students signed the pledge, with nearly two-thirds of those students committing to 100 hours.

The OU College of Law has an incredible tradition of students performing pro bono and public service work during law school. Last academic year, OU Law students provided a record 23,333 hours of pro bono service, shattering the previous record by more than 6,000 hours. Since 2004, OU Law students have reported more than 125,000 pro bono hours. |SL|
